FROM THE WALLS.....

Another good sermon (lesson, he calls it) from Mr. B.R. Wonder if Rev. Russ knows how blessed he is to have so many elders who will step in while he's away? And, Mr. Dylan had a good Children's Sermon, too.

Now, I like poetry as well as the next mouse, but I'm glad my teachers didn't require me to memorize all those poems Mr. B. R. quoted Sunday! Maybe they did and I just don't remember them!

Miss Barbara and Mr. Don made it back safely from their vacation and seemed to have a good visit with relatives. Glad you are back safe and sound.

Have you been humming Danny Boy this week? I loved the song Miss Julie sang Sunday morning. Hope none of my tears fell on her head. I wasn't the only one with tears running down my cheeks, though. Her beautiful voice touched a lot of the humans, too.

It will be good to have the Rev. and Lisa back in town this week. If they are like some of the rest, it will take a week or two to recuperate from their trip.

I'm hoping to catch a ride over to Redeemer Sunday morning for the joint worship service. Maybe I can hide in Miss Niki's car while she's locking up the church.

Everything seems to be "go" for the mission trip. There's a big box of crayons, coloring books, toys, etc., for the youth to take to the children in Mexico. We'll be praying for their safe journey and good weather so they can build some homes for those who don't have a place to live. It's hard work carrying buckets of cement and working in the heat, but they will enjoy every minute of it. I heard someone say they will be having VBS with the children who live there, as well. That should be lots of fun, too.

Dr. Bohmfalk was very entertaining last week with his stories of ministers, etc. I thought he had some good advice concerning health issues also. I hope I'm able to go down to his restaurant after it opens. It sounds like there will be lots of good food and you know how I like food!
